She is drawn back by the promise of rebuilding her family's home, which was destroyed during the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. However, upon her arrival, Rachel finds that the city is more divided than ever, and tensions are running high between Jews and Arabs. As she navigates the complex social and political landscape, Rachel becomes involved with a group of activists who are fighting for peace and reconciliation between the two communities. Along the way, she encounters old friends, new loves, and bitter enemies, all while trying to find her own place in a city that is both sacred and profane. As the conflict escalates and the stakes grow higher, Rachel must decide where her loyalties truly lie and what she is willing to sacrifice for the sake of peace. Google has decided to discontinue Google Cloud Print after the year 2020, joining a list of other products which have been put to rest in recent years. This includes Google Reader and Google Inbox. Google Cloud Print, which was launched in 2010, is a service that allows users to print documents from anywhere, as long as they are connected to the internet. This means that a document can be printed from a smartphone, tablet or laptop without any need for cables or drivers. Google has made it clear that the service will continue to work until the end of 2020, but will no longer receive any software updates. Furthermore, from January 1, 2021, it will stop working entirely. The decision to discontinue Google Cloud Print comes as the company looks to focus on more profitable ventures. In a statement, Google said that it was discontinuing the service "to improve our overall cloud printing experience." The announcement has come as a surprise to many users, who see the service as an essential tool for printing from mobile devices. However, Google has suggested that there are a number of other cloud printing services available that will be able to fill the void left by Google Cloud Print. For those who are still using Google Cloud Print, Google has suggested that they begin transferring to another service before the year 2020 comes to a close. This will ensure that they are not left without an essential printing service. Overall, the discontinuation of Google Cloud Print is a reflection of the changing landscape of the technology industry. As companies look to streamline their operations and focus on more profitable ventures, it is inevitable that some beloved products and services will be phased out.		Google has announced the shutdown of Google Cloud Print after 2020, joining other discontinued products. This includes Google Reader and Google Inbox. Launched in 2010, Google Cloud Print enabled users to print documents remotely as long as they had internet access. Original AI Text MAGE / SQuAD Semantic: 10 (ref.) GPTZero: 100.0% Pangram: 100.0% The Panthers offense, which led the NFL in scoring (500 points), was loaded with talent, boasting six Pro Bowl selections. Pro Bowl quarterback Cam Newton had one of his best seasons, completing 67.9 percent of his passes (296 of 432) for 3,837 yards and 35 touchdowns, with just 10 interceptions. Newton was the first quarterback in NFL history to throw for more than 30 touchdowns and rush for 10 in a single season. He had 10 rushing touchdowns in 2015, the most by a quarterback since he had 14 in 2011. Newton's 35 passing touchdowns set a Panthers franchise record. His favorite target was tight end Greg Olsen, who led the team in receptions (77) and receiving yards (1,104) and had seven touchdown catches. It was the third consecutive season that Olsen led the Panthers in receiving yards. He is one of six tight ends in NFL history with three consecutive 1,000-yard receiving seasons. While the offense was explosive, the defense was stingy. The Panthers finished the season ranked second in the NFL in both total defense and points allowed per game (19.3). Defensive end Jared Allen led the team with 10.5 sacks, and linebacker Thomas Davis had a career-high 115 tackles, two forced fumbles and a career-best four interceptions, returning one for a touchdown. Cornerback Josh Norman finished the season with four interceptions and 18 passes defended.
